“ I remember on several occasions seeing Adam after work and talking with him about how hard it is to find a job. I asked him what kind of industry or marketable skills does he have, he looked down and "i guess none". I responded with "looks like you have some sales skills cause you just sold me on the idea of helping you start your own business. I quickly asked him would you hire you?" He answered "hell ya i would." "Cool" I said lets start you a business." He decided to start a gutter cleaning and inspection service. We were on our way he had motivation a service to perform for home owners and he had my pressure washer he was just starting his journey

“ No one in the world could call you "Buddee" like Adam. He was a fine young man who possessed an infectious humor and a kind heart. We shared some personal insights and he had great plans for a very robust and positive future. He had a great spirit. He could irritate the warts off a hog, but, you could not help but love him. I am an old man, who, I believe he listened to. That is, my philosophy of life and some of the lessons I've learned. He always responded sincerely. I miss him terribly...He kept telling me he wanted to go to Church with me. I know we will be close on the other side. Until then, he and you, his family and friends, will be in my thoughts and prayers. May the Lord keep you and Adam in the hollow of His hands. LP

“ There wasn't a month that went by that Adam didn't knock on my door and just visit me and my dog. Our dogs are best friends just love each other. And Adam would just come over and BS with me. Sometimes he stayed 10 minutes sometimes he stayed an hour. Always offered to go somewhere because I didn't drive at that time. And he so cool and witty (perfect example was this LYFT to drive him around)...even telling me that he would actually invite the girls in his home and a lot of them did come in and stay watch a movie with Adam. Just like when his car is broke down he always had a positive attitude to anything bad in his life and would immediately turn it around and make it good. And the funny thing is he always got caught for everything he never got away with nothing. But that didn't bother him. It's really funny because I don't answer my door – unless I know someone is coming and he never let me know he was coming and he didn't have a special knock but I always answer the door and he's was standing there With that big BEAR HUG that he gave everyone... That is crazy. I guess it shows what a good heart does it penetrates through any object into our hearts. And Adam had the biggest heart of anyone. I'm going to miss him so much!!! Everyone knows me as Dad and I treat all these kids as if they were my own as they call me "Pops & Dad"... And Shea is going to miss him more than anyone I feel.... he is so heartbroken. And I I guess it's just appropriate that these best friends were together for his last day!! REST FREE & EASY Adam!!! You will be missed so much. I love you
