“ Guillermo shopped at our store for many years. His gentle, quiet, and polite smile and demeanor were the way we always saw him. Always a smile on his face, and a friendly word to me every time he visited. One time, probably 7 or 8 years ago, I forgot to hand him his credit card back to him after a purchase. (most of our customers use credit cards in our industry at our stores). He came back later that day to get his card from me. We teased about me spending all that was left on it. Every time thereafter, when he would come into the store and I helped him. EVERY TIME, when I had finished running his card and was handing it back to him, as I'm handing it back to him, we would both break out in a big smile remembering that day he thought he'd lost his card. He and I had a running joke about that day many years ago. He has the sweetest disposition about him. I would see his smile and outstretched hand to shake nearly every time he'd come in. Recently, he came in not to buy anything, but to share with me that he was sick and going to have some treatment for it. The big "C". I hugged my friend Guillermo and told him he was in my prayers. I promise not to hide your credit card anymore my friend. I'll truly miss your handshake and the way you say my name till I see my friend Guillermo again. Till we meet again good Brother. They say that ones eyes are the window to ones soul. I saw and felt Our Savior's friendship, love and unassuming gentleness in your eyes. You are truly a Son of God and you've been called home my friend. I'm guessing The Lord needs a great Refrigeration technician to take care of a few things up there. He's heard how great Servi Sanchez was here in Utah. :) God Bless you my friend, Guillermo. May God bless the Sanchez family with the peace that only Our Heavenly Father and Savior Jesus Christ can give us.
