Linda grew up in a loving home with parents and siblings whom she adored. She made everybody feel important and special. She had many friends and her relationships were very dear to her. Her love for those special individuals at the Utah State Developmental Center showed as she returned as a volunteer worker in her later years. She was a loving mother and an even better grandma.

Linda's heart was broken when she had to bury two of her children, however she had a perfect knowledge of the plan of salvation and she knew that she would see them again someday. She served in various callings in the LDS church. Anytime there was a chance to serve others she did so willingly.

Linda did not have many worldly possessions but she would generously share what she did have with anyone. She loved to spoil her grandkids and made each one of them feel special. Each one of her kids and grandkids have many fond memories of their time spent with her.

“ Linda was a dear friend and companion of my mother, Mildred Taylor, for many years. I was always so grateful to her for her loyal friendship. She gave me a winter coat, one year, and I still use it! I think of her every time I put it on.

“ What a beautifully written obituary, of a woman who lived such a Christ centered life! When my husband passed away, she came to the viewing which touched my heart greatly and gave me strength. She had handed me a card as she came through the line. When I opened it that night, I found that she had included some cash along with her sweet words. I knew what a sacrifice that was for her, which made it even more valuable and special to me! She truly lived a life of service and compassion for others!
