“ Some people leave a big hole just passing through your life for a short time. Dal and I met at Intermountain where he volunteered and we became instant friends. Not hard, Dal was just that kind of happy, make it work kind of guy. Today (9/22/24) I ran across a note about him so I went looking... too late to visit one last time! Makes me sad for the chances I missed to visit one more time. Big hole!!

“ Today is the first day that I can call you husband.
Yes, I know how happy you are. You helped me get us legally married on February 20th 2009 the Judge signed our fight.
We became legally married now.
I will always miss you..yes, I know that you had begun the next phase of life beyond what I can only imagine..my life here with you was private only you and I knew, you are right! It dosnt matter what anyone wrote down all the negative untruths.
You protective ways- I laugh at our past adventures and the fun we had. And cry because you are gone. It's been difficult and I know you have always been right here. Along with others that have past. One day we will embrace and meet once again and our stories will be truths once again.
For the haters- I know you will set them straight . Yes we did have our fair share of difficult times- but, we always ended back into each other's arms...and the words of I'm sorry always came out of both our mouths at the same time..then you say your special funnyman words to me. And we busted out laughing.
We helped each other out and I thank you- and yes between us I do know how sorry you are and that one will always stay personal.
I'm sorry as well. We both had our own issues.
I will always always Love you and not one human can take our Love away.....
That person that we communicated through gave me the answers- and I'm thankful for that oh so precious time.
Yes, I can still feel you around me-yes, I know our Love last forever.
Until I see you my Love...
I did the footwork you asked of me

“ I met Dal as a volunteer crime victim advocate for Midvale PD. He was one of my favorite partners. We quickly became great friends. He was a great hugger and shoulder to lean on, coffee and breakfast partner. The last couple of months I became his Bunco partner at the WJ Senior Center. He told me I was his “caregiver” at the Senior Center. He would tell me “thank you for being my friend”. I was the lucky one to have him for my friend. Dal I love you and will miss you so much. Thank you for being my friend. JayLynn Thomas ❤

“ Dal and I shared a special bond with the midvale suicide coalition from our bike runs to the great number of families he helped support. He had the most beautiful caring spirit to share with others going through grief together. Will miss his wonderful hugs. No one went home without one. No doubt your son got your last hug. Will miss you but will cherish our time together. So glad to call you my friend. Janet Moore

“ I met Dal about 9 years ago at the West Jordan Sr. Center. He was fascinated with my last name "Jamalkowski" and never forgot it. I was Rosarita Jamalkowski and he loved to say it. I will miss his hugs and that fantastic smile. To know Dal was to love him. Our BUNCO games will not be the same without him. He will be missed and never forgotten. Love, hugs and prayer to his family, who he adored and cherished.
