“ All of my memories of uncle Glenn are happy ones, he was always cracking a joke or lending a helping hand. He was one of the most loving people, and treated everyone like family. He loved both people and animals, especially his ferret babies. I remember when I was little and we went over to Uncle Glenn's and he had ferrets running around at his feet, they followed him everywhere and behaved almost like dogs following their master. When we got Oakley, basically an 80 pound puppy, Glenn never minded when we brought him over, he'd push him around and play with him the way Oakley liked to play, and when Oakley was tired he'd get him a bowl of water. Uncle Glenn always helped everybody, I can't tell you the countless ways he helped our entire family. When I got my first car, an old 1983 Chevy truck, he helped my dad and I paint the whole thing, replace a door, and clean everything up really nice. Whatever anyone needed, he either had it in his shop or he could build/fix it for you. Even just a few months ago, I was looking for shelves for my room, and my dad came home from Uncle Glenn's one day with 4 beautiful stained log shelves he made for me. In our garage sits Kenneth Beebe Sr's old Ford farm truck, and in the passenger seat is a stuffed animal/puppet Uncle Glenn gave me that he used to tease me and all the little kids with (it's a bit creepy) but that weird looking puppet will always hold happy, fun memories of hanging out with Uncle Glenn. He will always be missed, but he lived a full life and helped so many people, and it's comforting to know he will never feel pain again, because all he put into this world was happiness and love. 💙 love you all
