

Jeffrey Lulualii Aiono

April 21, 1968 - August 18, 2021

Jeffrey Lulualii Aiono, 53 passed away at his home surrounded by his family on Wednesday, August 18th, 2021, after his battle with congestive heart failure.

Jeff grew up in Compton, California and then made his final move to West Valley City where he presided permanently.

Jeff served a full-time LDS mission in Spokane, WA. No matter where he was in life his love for the gospel and his testimony never wavered.

Jeff was a loving and caring Father, partner, brother, cousin, friend & Papa. His natural love for music has touched so many people's lives. He was blessed to have an ear for that beat or that sound that could change a whole song. He could spend hours talking about what new receiver or surround sound he just purchased. Those that knew him well knew that the music or the sound had to be loud as if we were all in a concert theater. He started his first music label called "CP Music (Closet Production)". He spent so many hours producing his new artists and just enjoying their talents and seeing their love for music as well.

He loved the simple things in life like getting together with family and smoking up some meat in his new smoker. Every time he got the chance he would record or take a picture of every good and fun moment he had with family, or friends.

Jeff was a man of great integrity. This is a big loss for our family. He will be truly missed. We love you “Jazzy J” till we meet again.

“ Goodbye my friend Jeffrey L Aiono. We served our missions together in the same district in Kennewick, while Hal Armstrong was his companion. He kept me from going crazy. He would spend hours on P-Days creating music that was uplifting and fun to listen to. He was a wonderful guy and fun to be around.

“ Jeff was a super humble guy. We met him from our Brother Donnie Maiava when he would travel to Vegas to record. Recorded a couple background tracks for friends back in the day and it was a pleasure to work with Him. May God bless and comfort his family at this time.
