

Lamont Worthen Law

February 27, 1939 - November 3, 2017

Lamont Worthen Law, 78, died on November 3, 2017 in Providence, Utah after struggling with the aftermath of multiple strokes. He was born on February 27, 1939 to Guy Wesley and Vada Worthen Law, in Orangeville, Utah. He was born at home, the youngest of four children. He grew up in Orangeville, graduating from high school in 1957. He joined the United States Army, which took him on many adventures, the greatest one being stationed at Ft. Bliss, Texas. It was there that he met his eternal sweetheart, companion, and wife, Maureen Mask. They were married in the Manti Temple on September 5, 1959, for time and all eternity. This eternal bond would carry him through a tour of duty in Vietnam, and his darkest days of battling dementia.

He faithfully served his country for 25 years. During this time, he and his family lived in Utah, New Mexico, Texas, Alabama, Germany, Wisconsin, Maryland, and Alaska. After retiring from the Army, he worked for Lockheed Martin in Tooele, Utah for ten years. He again retired and moved back to Orangeville--his childhood home and love. There he grew his business--Mont's Custom leather. He loved to be out in his shop making leather products and attending gun shows. Rifle slings were his specialty. Anyone that talked to Lamont felt like they were best friends. He had a special gift of being able to talk to people and make them feel comfortable, liked, and understood.

He received a bachelor's degree from Brigham Young University and a master's degree from New Mexico State University.

Lamont was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. He labored in many callings, including serving three full-time missions with his wife: Spain Barcelona, Texas McAllen both Spanish speaking) and a home mission. He and Maureen also served in the Manti Temple. He was valiant in his testimony of Jesus Christ, and his love for his wife.

He leaves behind his wife, Maureen, and three daughters: Susan (Richard) Netzley of Hyrum, Julie (David) Curtis of West Jordan, and Amy Price of Riverdale. He has 17 grandchildren and 13 great-grandchildren, with three more on the way (including a set of twin girls). Two of his daughters served a full-time mission, and nine of his grandchildren served, while one is anxiously awaiting his call.

His is also survived by his brother Sherald (Emma Lou) Law of Price, a sister-in-law Joyce Law of Orangeville, a brother-in-law Clate (Carol) Mask of Arizona, a brother-in-law Rudy Mask of California and a sister-in-law Linda (Vaughn) Hassell of Arizona. He was preceded in death by his parents, parents-in-law, brother Ruane Law, sister Ruby Mae Snow, and sister-in-law Carolyn Mask.

“ There are a few things I'll always remember about grandpa.

First, he always made us pancakes for breakfast when we visited him. He'd put them on the Disney plates they had and that made us feel like we were eating something really special. They were the best pancakes ever!

Grandpa always had candy in his pockets that he liked to share with us.

When I was little the smell of a steak grilling reminded me of visiting my grandparent's house.

I used to love to help my grandpa in his shop. I'd collect the little leather belt hole punhouts. I called them bugs.

I remember eating a lot of bologna at grandpa's house and running away from Dutchess who liked to steal it out of our little kid hands.

Of course I remember playing with the little people and the dress up dolls. Grandpa and Grandma's toys were more fun than our own.

When I was 8 years old, after my baptism Grandpa gave me the gift of the Holy Ghost. That was special to me.

As an adult I was blessed to have my grandparents at my temple wedding. They were there when I blessed my first baby.

Mostly, I remember my grandpa as being one of the most loving, gentle, kind and non judgmental person I knew. I always felt safe, loved, and excepted when I was around him. Grandpa was someone you wanted to be around. He would tell vivid stories that were fun to listen to. You knew he loved you, never doubted it. He was a righteous example to me. I love you grandpa!!

I don't know if you will see this comment so many years later but I'm trying to contact someone in your family. I live in Taylorsville and found a dog tag necklace in my front yard with your grandpas name on it. I suspect someone just dropped it as they walked by but I don't know who. I would very much like to return it to whoever lost it. If you see this comment and have family who might have lost this could you contact me? My email is pringlea321@hotmail.com.
