There was an Angel who wiped my tears away. An Angel who always kept the dark astray. She tirelessly looked after me when I slept. She cooked for me, worked for me and always kept the house swept. And then one day, God told her, "You need to leave, come back and rest." So she left, knowing fully that she tried her best. When I go to heaven, I want to hug and thank her, to tell her how much I loved her because she was the greatest mother anyone can ask for. Latu Tuikolongahau your oldest son
